Absolute Raid Bot: Raider Registration and Account Recovery

Version 1.0.6 · for raiders · Absolute Gaming LLC

Your guild keeps its DKP in Absolute Raid Bot on Discord. Registering links your WoW character to your Discord account so you can check your DKP. This guide shows exactly how to register, and what to do if you lose access.

1. Before you start

- Be a member of your guild's Discord server.
- Know your character's name, and its realm if it's on a different realm from the guild (for example `Brannoc-Stormrage`).
- You don't need a password or an app: the bot knows you by your Discord account. Keep that account safe with Discord's own two-factor (User Settings -> My Account -> Enable Authenticator App).

2. Register, step by step

1. In any channel of your guild's server, type `/dkp register` and pick it from the list.
2. Fill in:
   - character: your character's name, or `Name-Realm`
   - class: optional, but it makes the standings look right
3. Press Enter. Only you see the reply.

/dkp register character: Brannoc-Stormrage class: Warrior
```

3. What the reply means

Reply	What happens next
Thanks! Brannoc-Stormrage is waiting for an admin to approve it.	An officer approves it. Until then `/dkp me` shows Waiting for approval.
Brannoc-Stormrage is registered to you.	Your guild doesn't require approval: you're done.
Brannoc-Stormrage is already yours.	Nothing to do.
...is already registered to someone else.	Ask an officer: they can move it to you if it's yours (section 6).
...was removed by an admin. or Your registration was removed by an admin.	Ask an officer to bring it back (section 6.5).
'...' isn't a character name.	Use the name only, or Name-Realm, with no spaces.

Already raided before registering? Your character is probably in the book from raid imports. Registering claims it, and it keeps all its DKP and history.

4. Alts

Register each character the same way. `/dkp me` shows all of them, each with its own DKP.

5. Checking it worked

```
/dkp me
```

Shows each of your characters with its DKP and its last 5 changes. The User Guide has every `/dkp` command.

6. Account recovery

6.1 "I forgot how to log in"

There is nothing to log in to. Open your guild's Discord server with your Discord account and use the `/dkp` commands. Your registration is tied to that Discord account.

6.2 I lost access to my Discord account

1. Recover it with Discord first: on the login screen choose Forgot your password?, or contact Discord support. The bot can't recover a Discord account.
2. Once you're back in, everything works as before.

6.3 I had to make a new Discord account

Your DKP belongs to your character, not to your Discord account, so nothing is lost.

1. Join the guild's server with the new account.
2. Ask an officer to move your characters to it. They run:

```
/dkpmanage link-character character: Brannoc-Stormrage member: @You reason: New Discord account
```

3. Check with `/dkp me`. Your DKP and history came with the character.

If you try `/dkp register` first, you'll see already registered to someone else. That's expected: the officer's link fixes it.

6.4 My character changed name or realm

Ask an officer. They can add the new name and move the DKP across with an adjustment (both are logged).

6.5 My registration was removed

An officer can restore it with `/dkpmanage link-character` (your registration comes back and the character keeps its history). If the character itself was removed, they bring it back with `/dkpmanage add-character`.

6.6 My DKP looks wrong

`/dkp history character: Brannoc-Stormrage` shows every change and its reason. Every officer change is logged with a reason that can't be erased, so an officer can show you exactly what happened.

7. Your privacy

- Your replies from `/dkp me`, `/dkp check` and `/dkp history` are shown only to you. `/dkp standings` is posted in the channel.
- The bot stores your Discord user ID and display name, your characters, and their DKP history. It doesn't read your messages.
- Bids you make in game are sealed: only the raid leader sees the amounts.
